Trade between communities

Read or look closely

Indigenous communities trade goods over long distances. Here is an imagined trade: One group brings corn. The other brings dried fish. Each group gets a food it did not bring.

Answers

1. In the trade described, what food does the first group bring?

Corn.

2. What does the first group get?

Dried fish.

3. What does the second group get?

Corn.

4. Why might this trade help both groups?

Both get a food that is different from the one they brought.
