Social studies · Grade 4

Comparing two societies around 1500

Read or look closely

Activities vary from place to place. In many Iroquoian communities, growing corn is important. In many Algonquian communities, moving with the seasons helps people hunt and fish. Members of both societies fish.

Answers

1. Which society does the text associate with growing corn?

Iroquoian communities.

2. What helps the Algonquian communities described here hunt and fish?

Moving with the seasons.

3. Which activity is found in both societies?

Fishing.

4. Write one difference between the activities described for the two societies.

Example: The text emphasizes corn growing in many Iroquoian communities and seasonal travel in many Algonquian communities.