Social studies · Grade 4

Comparing two societies around 1500

Compare activities of Iroquoian and Algonquian communities.

Name _____ Date _____

Read or look closely

Activities vary from place to place. In many Iroquoian communities, growing corn is important. In many Algonquian communities, moving with the seasons helps people hunt and fish. Members of both societies fish.

Your turn

1. Which society does the text associate with growing corn?

2. What helps the Algonquian communities described here hunt and fish?

3. Which activity is found in both societies?

4. Write one difference between the activities described for the two societies.